Definitions

Community - a flexible term used to define groups of connected people. We use it to describe people of a Shire generally, including individuals or groups who live, work, play, study, visit, volunteer, invest in or pass through the Shire.

More specifically, it can refer to everyone affiliated with the Shire, or smaller groups defined by interest, identity or location, and not necessarily homogenous in composition or views. Different types of communities often overlap and extend beyond municipal boundaries. Communities may be structured, as in clubs or associations or unstructured, such as walking groups. Communities are flexible and temporary, subject individual identity and location.

Consultation/Engagement - The process of seeking input on a matter and working with people to build understanding, strengthen relationships and inform decisions.

Stakeholder - An individual or group with a strong interest in the decisions of Council and are directly impacted by their outcomes.

Closed Meetings - When Council resolves to close a meeting to the general public in order to consider a confidential matter regarding issues of a legal, contractual or other issue.

Transparency - Organisations are transparent when they enable others to see and understand how they operate in an honest way. To achieve transparency, an organisation must provide information about its activities and governance to stakeholders that is accurate, complete and made available in a timely way. Transparency enables accountability.

This does not mean all information should be made publicly available. There are certain types of information that may not be provided publicly such as private information (such as client records or health records) and 'commercial in confidence' material (such as tender submissions).
